

RESPONSIBLE INVESTMENT DUE DILIGENCE QUESTIONNAIRE FOR FORESTRY INVESTORS

This responsible investment due diligence questionnaire (DDQ) has been developed to help investors appraising potential forestry investment managers to evaluate how a manager handles environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors. The responses to the questions will give an insight into the depth and breadth of ESG strategy used by the manager, the sophistication of their approach for integrating ESG factors into the investment process and the levels of ESG disclosure that they routinely provide.

A questionnaire can never replace the dialogue between manager and investor: this DDQ is designed to act as a starting point for such dialogue by providing a baseline list of questions that investors can ask managers. From this baseline, the PRI encourages investors to create additional, tailored questions to suit their broader objectives and their strategy, size, experience and resources.

By publishing this freely available tool, the PRI hopes to streamline industry practices and curb the proliferation of different approaches, which can be counterproductive for investors and their forestry investment managers.

The DDQ is divided into five sections:

- Policy – the overarching approach to responsible investment
- Governance and resourcing – who is involved in implementing the strategy and what support they have
- Pre-investment – the steps taken during an acquisition to integrate ESG factors
- Portfolio management – the systems in place to manage ESG factors for existing assets
- Reporting – the communication channels between the manager and investors

Notes on using this DDQ

This DDQ is intended to be used by investors seeking exposure to timberland as the underlying asset of their investment. It should be applicable to all types of forestry investment, but is aimed most specifically at the management of timberland itself, rather than other areas of the value chain related to forestry holdings, such as sawmills or pulp production.
